Space Exploration

Afterall It's the only thing that matters. Space, The Final Frontier.

- "Life looks for life".
- fewer of our weaknesses. A part of something bigger. stars. It'll be a species much like us with more of our strength & It'll not be us who will reach the Alpha Centauri or other near
- We humans, trying to understand this universe like, this universe trying to understand itself.
- important than finding the truth about my own existence itself Here I stand, A universe of atoms and an atom in the universe Wondering about the existence itself, and what could be more isn't. It's worth the shot. I mean, what else matters? I would like to set sail for deep space with my Starship & (with my Stargirl, If any?). I wonder, what I might found there & even if there

My Dream*

- I think that, "It's not about living forever, it's about living with yourself forever"
- Exploration by the work I'll do. I want to inspire the next generation of humanity for Space